

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN!

Santa's Calling All Good Fellows

It's Good Fellow time again. When the Good Fellow bell starts to ring the echo stirs memories, mostly pleasant, some poignant and some of frustration.

The 38th Herald-Press Good Fellow season opens with a step toward the $3,500 goal. Already in the Good Fellow fund is $151. But while the goal is the same as last year the real aim is at the record-breaking total of $5,017.79 raised last year.

The memory that is most important is the one that mothers remember of children whose faith in Christmas is unshaken. The memory of a smile can be important.

Some of the memories are bittersweet. The Good Fellow checks find their way into dark, frustrated corners to brighten the Christmas season for many who may be forgotten the rest of the year.

There is a shy smile of satisfaction to many of the Good Fellows who get their contributions in early. The smile of generosity is one that will light up the face of many in the next few, hectic weeks when the great rush is on.

The smile we are going to write about today is the smile of frustration as the losing sports pay up their football bets—some of them running back to the tail end of the season last year.

Almost $100 of today's Good Fellow total, $98 to be exact, is the result of football wagers. While the Good Fellows can't lose—the money always ends up in the Good Fellow bank—the winners gloat and the losers moan.

But the first donation comes from the shadow of last Christmas. Not signed, this $5 in cash came with this note: "This is to help the Good Fellows sustain the spirit of Christmas through all the year." There will be many more unsigned notes like this in the next few weeks. This letter was postmarked Dec. 27, 1967.

'BOMB' MISSES WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON (AP) — A homemade mortar, aimed at the White House and loaded with anti-Communist leaflets that have descended on three other cities this month, misfired and hit a toolshed.

The device exploded harmlessly Friday several hundred feet from the White House.

The leaflets were signed "Minutemen," an organization described by the FBI as "secret, extremist and anti-Communist."

Police said the leaflets were crammed into a vegetable can and launched from inside a trash can with explosives. Officers said the projectile, which was to split apart with a second explosion, would have gone into the ellipse behind the White House or onto the White House grounds if the first explosion hadn't tipped the rubbish can.

The projectile was launched from the corner of 15th Street and Constitution Avenue between the executive mansion and the Washington Monument. It tore into a plywood toolshed several hundred feet from the White House.

Similar shots were more successful in Dallas, Tex., Monday and Kansas City and Wichita, Kans., Nov. 6. In those cases the cargo showered over busy areas.

The leaflets bear a United Nations symbol with crossed bones and the message: "How much longer will the American people stand idly by while their constitutional rights and freedoms are bartered away through secret treaties and U.N. commitments made without their knowledge or consent?"

VERDICT IS REVERSED; FAST TIME LOSES!

Camper Firm May Be Sold

New Industry Booming At South Haven

By JIM DOWAHUE
South Haven Bureau

SOUTH HAVEN — An agreement to purchase Pleasure-Time Industries, a growing camper trailer factory in South Haven township, has been made by Poloron Products, of New Rochelle, N. Y., it was disclosed Friday by Pleasure-Time President Bill Rasmussen.

Rasmussen said the sale will probably be consummated within the next few weeks, following approval by the Securities Exchange Commission.

NO CHANGE

He said the change of ownership will have no effect on the operation of the local plant and that he will retain the title of president, and Charles Rehfeld, vice-president. The company will retain its name.

Rasmussen said current plans for a 90 by 90 foot addition to the plant on Blue Star Memorial highway are going to be carried out in about two weeks, and a second expansion will soon follow this. He said the expansions had been planned before the sale agreement was made.

"After this we will be seeking property to construct a new factory because we have run out of room" the company president added. He said the present building will be used for construction of parts for the larger plant.

Pleasure-Time Industries has been a success story since it was founded in April, 1967. At that time, Rasmussen and Rehfeld, brothers-in-law, teamed up to design a special camper unit with a spring assembly that permits easy assembling of the tent within minutes. The trailers were light, well balanced,

Devaluation Of Franc Certain

From Associated Press

President Charles de Gaulle remained silent today about devaluation of the franc, but much of the world considered it a foregone conclusion and Frenchmen anticipated even bigger bites out of their pocket-books.

Some experts calculated that a 10 per cent devaluation of the franc would result in a two per cent price hike. The cost of imported goods would go up, they said, but French products should remain stable.

De Gaulle was reported preparing to make a nationwide television address soon, possibly tonight.

Meanwhile, the British recoiled with shock and anger today from the latest tax increases in that country, while financial experts predicted worse when the French franc is devalued.

Some financial commentators said the 10 per cent sales tax slapped on consumer goods in Britain, a government move to save the pound sterling from a second devaluation in just over a year, would fail to solve the country's domestic difficulties.

Difference Of Only 413 Votes

Recount Said Likely; Would Cost $30,000

LANSING (AP) — A just-completed, county-by-county check of the Nov. 5 election returns spells apparent defeat for daylight savings time in Michigan by only 413 votes.

Unofficial returns reported immediately after the election showed the fast time proposal ahead by some 25,000 votes with only 2.2 per cent of the state's 5,576 precincts unreported.

Secretary of State James Hare, who announced the result of the vote canvass late Friday, said it was not immediately possible to find the cause of the discrepancy.

"We're sure of our figures," added State Elections Director Bernard Apol.

RECOUNT POSSIBLE

Hare noted backers of daylight savings time could petition for a recount of the vote. The returns are certified by the Board of State Canvassers.

The board is scheduled to meet Monday, but Hare said they might delay certifying the savings time totals in order to give fast-time supporters an opportunity to decide whether to ask for a recount.

Hare added that none of the other results reported following the election had been overturned by the canvass, which was completed only Friday.

The savings time count as compiled by Apol's elections division showed 1,402,002 votes for savings time and 1,402,415 against. The margin of defeat was less than 0.0002 per cent of the total vote cast on the question.

Any citizen may petition for a recount, but must pay $5 for each precinct rechecked, Apol said. A statewide recount thus would cost more than $30,000. If the recount reversed the election outcome, the money would be refunded.

Apol said the board had until Dec. 15 to certify the election returns. Recount requests would be valid for the following 48 hours.

Hare added the elections division has asked each of the state's 83 counties for a precinct-by-precinct breakdown of the vote on savings time, which was proposition two on the ballot.

The time question in Michigan has a stormy history that dates from passage by Congress of the Federal Uniform Time Act of 1966.

The federal act decreed savings time for the entire nation from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October, but provided that a state could exempt itself from fast time by using its legislative process.

Michigan — joined only by Hawaii among the states — exempted itself by legislative act in 1967, but backers of savings time circulated referendum petitions and put the issue on the ballot. Michigan has been on savings time for the past two summers.

THE HARD WAY: John LaPlante of North Coloma road, Coloma, bagged his eight-point, 200 pound buck the hard way Friday morning. LaPlante was taking his wife to work at about 6 a. m. on I-94 and had planned to go deer hunting after he dropped his wife off at work. But before they got there the buck ran in front of the car which was traveling 70 miles per hour. The impact of the car striking the deer tore open the hood of the car blocking LaPlante's vision. LaPlante said, "for a few seconds I was right in the middle with fast moving traffic behind, the bridge structure of Carmody road over pass ahead, and I couldn't see a thing." LaPlante managed to pull off onto the shoulder of the road and neither he or his wife were hurt. (Marion Leedy photo)

Deputies Investigate Illegal Deer Hunting

Berrien county sheriff's officers Friday were informed of possible illegal hunting which bagged several deer at Camp Madron near Buchanan.

The caretaker of the Boy Scout camp told officers he heard shots about midnight and later found evidence that deer had been dressed out. Deer hunting is restricted to hours between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m.

A Coloma motorist got his deer in a legal, but inconvenient method. Officers said that a car driven by John G. LaPlante, route 3, struck and killed a deer on I-94 at Carmody road. LaPlante kept the deer as provided by law.

Extension Of School Year Eyed

LANSING (AP) — Provisions for extending the school year beyond the required 180 days should not just include revision of summer programs, a legislator told the State Department of Education Friday.

Rep. James Farnsworth, R-Plainwell and a member of the House Appropriations Committee, appeared at an education department hearing on rules governing distribution of $100,000 the legislature made available for studies of the possible extension.

The rules, Farnsworth said, should not suggest that an organization plan for an extended school year include "a modification of a summer school session." The department's proposed rules do include such language.

"This was not legislative intent" in appropriating the funds Farnsworth said. "We don't want to just plan something else for what you have in the summer. What we hoped to avoid is a district using funds for revision of the summer session by itself."

The proposed rules now are subject to revision by the department, approval by the State Board of Education and final review by the office of Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

Under the rules, districts are to apply for grants, not to exceed $20,000 each, to conduct feasibility studies for extending the regular school year. A department spokesman said he hoped to name a Jan. 15 or Jan. 17 deadline for grant applications and name recipients sometime in February.

Hartford Youth Dies In Crash

A 20-year-old Hartford youth died about 10 a. m. today from injuries sustained early this morning in a Watervliet township auto crash.

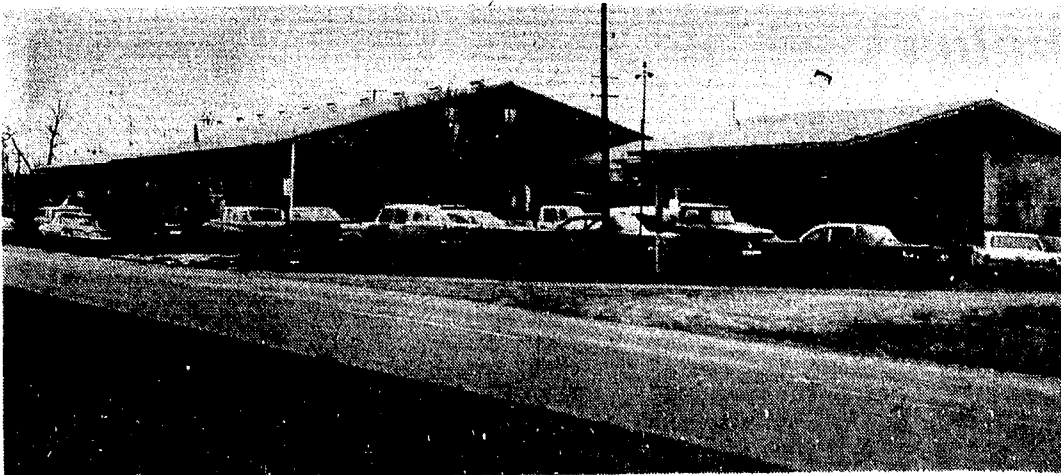

Dead of head injuries is Fred Weeden. Reported in critical condition at Watervliet Community hospital were Gary Moon, 19, Hartford, and Bruce Jensen, 20, of Jackson. Berrien county sheriff's officers said Moon was to be married today.

Moon was identified as the driver of a compact car that went off Hennessey road and crashed into an embankment. A fourth occupant of the car, Richard Madarik, 19, Decatur, sustained face cuts.

Sheriff's officers said they were returning from a stag party when the crash occurred about 3:30 a.m. Weeden died in a Kalamazoo

Skill, Tolerance Marked Life Of Charles Gore

He brought into the courtroom a grace and courtliness from a day that has passed us by.

That's the feeling expressed by a prominent, veteran member of the Berrien County Bar when he learned of the death yesterday of Atty. Charles W. Gore of Benton Harbor.

"Of course," said the colleague, "everyone knew of his great skill as a trial lawyer. But the thing that impressed me was the fact that in or out of the courtroom, he was always a gentleman."

"He treated other attorneys, the court, witnesses with a courtesy that was genuine. No matter how hot the case got, Charles Gore was a gentleman."

A younger member of the Bar added:

"He had a great respect for people; he liked them. I remember from my own start, fresh out of law school, how helpful he was to young attorneys. Even when you were opposed to him, he'd bend over backward to give you a pointer."

Mr. Gore died Thursday night at the age of 79. He had practiced law in Berrien county for more than half a century, until his final illness struck four months ago.

In his own lifetime his skill with juries became legendary. He built his reputation in a few years as Berrien prosecutor and in many years as a private practitioner. It was not infrequent for other lawyers to drop by circuit court just to observe Mr. Gore in action. He was that adept, that persuasive.

He was almost as well known with the general public, both for his professional ability and for his great personal charm. He had, of course, a large practice, and a legion of friends, as well.

Part of his attraction stemmed from his appearance. He possessed natural, physical grace and a voice with resonance enough to have qualified him as a fine singer in his earlier years.

But his unusual popularity seems likely to have come mainly from an inner quality. He was naturally gregarious, liked good companions. To this was added an intelligent insight into human nature, honed by years of experience with people and their problems. He developed a great tolerance for humanity; it showed in the friendly way he greeted people. He attracted not only wealthy clients for his skill, but poor, troubled clients for his sympathy.

America grows so quickly and moves so fast these days that a good deal of impersonality has replaced what used to be close relationships between lawyer and client, doctor and patient, policeman and citizens. Bar associations, in common with other professional groups, are, therefore, working diligently to project the proper public image for their members.

They could afford to work far less on public relations if more lawyers possessed the warm, human character and tolerance of Charles Gore.

Worth The Trip

When President Kennedy urged in 1961 that the Apollo program be undertaken, it seemed to most people like an impossible fantasy. No one knew how it could be done, whether with one giant rocket from earth, a smaller rocket fired from a space station or by means of sending a small landing craft down from a larger space vehicle orbiting the moon. One thing was certain, if it could be accomplished, a moon landing would be man's greatest adventure and certainly one of his more expensive undertakings.

Now the Apollo has flown, carrying three men in earth orbit. The huge 363-foot Apollo-Saturn 5 moon rocket is scheduled to make its first manned flight before the end of 1968. Additional flights, testing equipment and men are scheduled in coming months, culminating in a moon landing planned for 1969. When completed, the man-to-moon Apollo program will have cost some $24 billion, with the overall running to $44 billion.

A question which will be arising in public debate, and which the people of the United States will have to consider, is why go into space at all? Is it worth the cost, and if so, why?

The most obvious considerations are military. It is not difficult to imagine what the position of the United States would be if Russia had the ability to put scientific and communication instruments, surveillance satellites, men, and most importantly, atomic warheads into space, and this nation did not.

Aside from the fact that the United States, as a matter of survival, must maintain an edge in the balance of atomic terror in space, what has the space program contributed to the well-being of the United States as a whole?

To answer this question, the Stanford Research Institute has completed a six-part, 300-page analysis, entitled "Some Major Impacts of the National Space Program." Although the final conclusions from this report have not yet been drawn, Business Week magazine has reviewed some of its major points. It demonstrates that the work of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in developing the equipment, the techniques and the men to explore space has resulted in important progress in aeronautics and aviation research, in the science of astronomy, in the technology of new materials and their use and in the field of medicine.

Navigational and communications satellites now orbiting the earth have made major contributions to man's ability to communicate with his fellows in any part of the world.

Work on wing design and high-thrust aircraft engines will help improve the speed and safety of commercial aviation.

Micro-circuitry developed to permit the construction of the small size, lightweight, but highly complex, electronic equipment required for the control of space vehicles has had its impact in bringing more reliable and better products ranging from guidance products ranging from hearing aids and components that make the family car run longer and better, to sophisticated guidance equipment on jet airliners.

New metals, new materials and new techniques of fabricating them, developed as by-products of the space program are being applied to the production of untold thousands of consumer products.

According to the Stanford Research Institute report, the space program's "... impact on research in public health, medicine, and biology is likely to revolutionize clinical and research techniques in these sectors."

What it all boils down to is that the tremendous expenditure of ingenuity, research effort and practical application of discoveries made in the interests of putting man into the hostile environment of space is resulting in an unprecedented rate of advance in knowledge on a broad front.

In answer to the question "Why go into space?", Newsweek magazine reports that a former NASA official, now an MIT professor, replied, "Why, to come better back to earth."

This may be the best reason of all. But, in the long run, the people of the United States will have to decide.

Three bouquets must be reserved from "A Roomful of Roses" for three fine performances Friday night at the St. Joseph high school senior play. The largest bouquet was reserved for Beth Rankin who carried off the demanding pivot role of Bridget McGowan with surprising skill for a high school actress. During the course of her performance she was required to be a haughty, super-dreamy teenager on her first date and a lost, lonely girl.

Ken Achterberg as Jay Falton, the second father in the infernal triangle that furnished the conflict in the plot was an utterly relaxed well-timed straight man. Christine Filstrup who had the supporting comedy relief role of Grace Hewitt, showed the beginnings of a good comedy sense. Her timing and delivery, particularly in the final act, carried the audience with her.

The diplomatic corps in Washington is concerned about what they read as the probably mood of the new Congress and already are issuing warnings to the government of retaliation in the way of higher duties in their own countries on imported goods from the United States.

Strong formations of daylight bombers roared across the English channel to add further weight to the growing Allied effort to wreck the Reich by aerial assault.

DR. COLEMAN . . . And Speaking Of Your Health

It's a sad day for comedians because they have just lost one of their favorite categories of jokes. No longer will they be able to ask the audiences, "Is there a doctor in the house?" and, having found one, delight the audience with, "Did you get all the sponges out of the patient today?"

Surgeons at the Mayo Clinic did not come up with a new idea just to cheat the humorist. Rather they did conceive of this simple method to spot the possibility that a sponge might have been left in the abdomen of a patient.

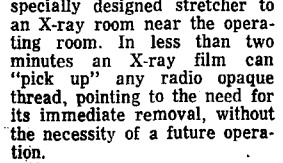

Dr. David C. Utz and Dr. Colin B. Holman at the Mayo Clinic have illustrated one of the great peace.

Dr. Coleman time advantages of atomic energy by this device. A tiny thread is made radio opaque and attached to every sponge used during an operation. Besides counting the number of sponges given to the surgeon and reclaimed by the nurse, another safety device is now used.

While still under anesthesia, the patient is wheeled on a specially designed stretcher to an X-ray room near the operating room. In less than two minutes an X-ray film can "pick up" any radio opaque thread, pointing to the need for its immediate removal, without the necessity of a future operation.

If ever a run-away sponge or instrument is discovered it can be removed immediately, thus avoiding any possible complications and sparing the patient any interruption of convalescence. The only thing left for the comedian is a description of a surgeon's ace if he ever does see that radio opaque thread.

A stroke is part of a large classification of disease that now occupies the attention of research scientists. In essence a stroke means that blood and oxygen that normally flow to the brain have been blocked. This interference may be due to a hemorrhage, a spasm or a blood clot in one of the major arteries to the brain. The signs and symptoms of a stroke are readily recognized by the physician.

Many "small" strokes may never be brought to the attention of the doctor and pass completely unnoticed until a major one takes place.

There was a time when there was a feeling of hopelessness attached to this severe condition, which can affect speech, walking, memory, and hearing, depending on the area of the brain deprived of blood.

Now the cause and the exact area of the stroke are being vigorously pursued with a series of complicated tests to give the victim the best change of total recovery.

At the Kaiser Foundation in Oakland, Calif., Dr. Robert Rankin and his colleague, Dr. Sanford Weiss, performed a complete series of tests on hundreds of stroke victims and learned that many who might formerly have been considered hopeless were candidates for successful surgery.

Blood vessels leading from the heart are studied by angiograms and air studies are done on the brain. X-rays, electroencephalograms and radio isotope tests are remarkably revealing and point to the possibility of cure with one of the many surgical procedures now available. The stroke victim is passing from hopelessness into a new area of optimism.

The Bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♦	2♦	2♥
2♦	6♥	6♠	Pass
Pass	7♥	7♣	Pass

Opening lead — ace of spades.

You don't often see hands where both sides can make a grand slam, but this deal from a duplicate saw several pairs make seven hearts doubled with the North-South cards, while a few pairs made seven spades doubled with the East-West cards.

At one table the bidding went as shown. East cuebid diamonds right away, hoping to find partner with one of the black suits. He was duly rewarded when West bid two spades over two hearts, and East then bid six spades after North's unstrategic leap to six hearts.

When North now went to seven hearts, East doubled, but this turned out poorly because West led the ace of spades and South proceeded to make all the tricks.

The uninspired spade lead brought North-South a plus of 2,470 points instead of a minus of 500 points, which would have been their portion with a diamond or club lead.

Though South made the grand slam, it should be noted that he would have gone down as he played the hand carelessly. He ruffed the spade lead in dummy and cashed the A-K of hearts, East showing out.

But before drawing a third round of trumps, he took the precaution of leading a diamond to the king. When East showed out, declarer returned to his hand with a trump, took a diamond finesse, and discarded all his clubs on the diamond.

At those tables where East-West bid seven spades, North was generally on lead, and here also the fate of the hand rested on the opening lead. The unfortunate defenders who led the king of diamonds lived to rue the day when East-West scored a grand slam to the tune of 2,470 points. A heart lead would have nipped the contract one trick — 200 points.

It is highly remarkable that some pairs did 4,940 points better (or worse) than others who held exactly the same cards.

Making a wrong turn into a one-way street, a discombobulated lady driver became so upset she sat helplessly in her car, unable to move forward or backward, while angry drivers, blocked effectively, honked their horns in protest. At length a cop appeared upon the scene, but the lady beat him to the draw. As he drew purposefully alongside, she stuck her head out of her car and demanded, "And where were YOU?"

Bob Sylvester asked a former baseball player—an outstanding star in six World Series—what had been the greatest thrill in his career. Unhesitatingly, the star replied, "The day I got locked in a dressing room by mistake with Maria McDonald."

BERRIEN COUNTY IS PUNISHING TWO CITIES

Police Chase, Arrest Youths

Stolen Auto, Merchandise Recovered In BH

Benton Harbor police arrested two youths early today in a chase by auto and foot and recovered a quantity of merchandise allegedly stolen from Voice of Music Corp.

The chase started when Patrolman Gary Jennings observed a car that had been reported stolen Friday and gave pursuit. The auto jumped the curb on Boughton street, off Colfax avenue, and two occupants fled on foot.

Jennings pursued one to a vacant house in the urban renewal area at 363 Eighth street. Taken into custody was Tommie Lee Harmon, 18, of 1192 East Main street, Benton township.

Patrolman Bill Althouse observed another figure running up Michigan bluff and apprehended a 14-year-old boy.

Police said the stolen auto was loaded with cartons containing phonographs, speakers, a tape recorder and other V-M products, which had been stored in a company warehouse at 375 West Main street.

A window was found open at the plant. An inventory was underway this morning to determine how much merchandise was missing. Police also continued the investigation to determine how many were involved.

Harmon was booked on two counts of possession of stolen property, larceny from a building, fleeing a police officer and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The 14-year-old was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Lt. Lyman Keigley, who directed the operation, said Harmon sustained a cut while going to the house and was treated at Mercy hospital.

Hughes Plastics, Inc., and Hughes Tool & Manufacturing Co. of 211 Kerth avenue, St. Joseph, filed suit Friday in Berrien circuit court for $620,000 damages from alleged faulty design and construction in a plant roof collapse in 1967.

Named as defendants were builders Brand Development Co. Modular Construction Co. of Muskegon, Brand co-partners Robert A. Anderson and Thomas B. Browne, and Plywood Components Corp. of Grand Haven, a roofing subcontractor. Hughes claimed the roof collapsed Jan. 26, 1967 during a four-day snow storm because of improper design and construction. The building was completed on Jan. 1, 1966.

Hughes claims damages from total loss of the building and lost profits.

Withhold $75,000 In Taxes

BH, New Buffalo Refusing To Pay Prisoner Costs

By BRANDON BROWN
Staff Writer

Berrien county is "punishing" the cities of Benton Harbor and New Buffalo for not paying $4.21 a day prisoner housing charges by withholding an estimated $75,000 from the cities.

"The current status is that we're not paying the bills, and the county, to the best of my knowledge, is withholding funds properly, due the City of Benton Harbor," said City Manager Don C. Stewart.

Benton Harbor Finance Director A.A. Antonovich estimated County Treasurer William Bartz is holding $70,000 due Benton Harbor. New Buffalo Treasurer Burnette Nichols said an October accounting showed the county treasurer was withholding $5,615.20 due New Buffalo.

The two cities currently are marking time in their scrap with the county over the amount charged for housing prisoners in the county jail, St. Joseph, after arrests on municipal ordinances.

"What can we do?" asked Mrs. Nichols. "They're holding the money."

Said Stewart: "I'm going to await whatever counsel and advice we get from Mr. Westol's office, unless directed to do otherwise by the city commission."

Westol is A.L. Westol, director of the local government audit division of the state treasury department.

Benton Harbor strenuously objects to $4.21 a day for prisoner housing, especially since until recently it paid a $1.40 lockup fee and 70 cents a day thereafter.

The state auditor general had advised the county this charge did not fully reimburse the county for its costs and instructed the county to assess cities the actual daily costs of incarceration. The cities get the fines and costs from arrests made under municipal ordinances and are required to stand the jail costs for their prisoners.

In March, 1967, the county adopted a $4.50 a day charge, but cut it to $4.21 in September, 1968, after a more comprehensive study of jail costs.

Stewart says the county acted arbitrarily, without informing the city, that the county is tardy in its billing, and that $4.21 is too much.

In an 11-page letter earlier this month to Director Westol, Stewart outlined the city's objections and suggested a meeting of county and city officials, possibly with Westol using his "good offices" to resolve "what has deteriorated into a very serious disagreement between the County of Berrien (or at least some of its representatives) and the City of Benton Harbor."

Benton Harbor and New Buffalo officials also say the Berrien sheriff's department is withholding fines paid by prisoners convicted in municipal cases. Prisoners sometimes spend a couple days in jail, pay the fine and are freed. Fines are supposed to go to the municipality.

Benton Harbor Finance Director Antonovich says the county is holding back some $20,000 in delinquent real estate tax payments — including some $14,000 earmarked for the Benton Harbor school district — plus state sales tax rebates to Benton Harbor "Probably somewhere near $50,000."

Through June, the city owes the county $39,594 according to the county's fee schedule, Antonovich said.

Mrs. Nichols said an October accounting showed the county holding $5,615.20 tax money due New Buffalo while the county claims New Buffalo owes $1,142.30. By her estimate New Buffalo owes only $547 through Sept. 6.

As one Benton Harbor official pointed out, the city could play the county's game when the city in December begins collecting some $400,000 in college, bridge, operating and other taxes due to the county.

Pearson
Will Run
For Council

SOUTH HAVEN — William Roscoe Pearson, yesterday added his name to the list of candidates for South Haven's City Council.

Pearson, 46, of 323 Fruit street, was probably the first Negro to serve as city alderman when he was appointed to fill a vacancy left in the first ward by William McDonald, last May. He is a Democrat.

Thus candidates have stepped forward this week for all but two of the expiring positions on the council. Mayor J. Glenn Sperry has announced he will not seek a third term in office, as did Aldermen Don McGuire, first ward, and Marion White, second ward. Incumbents Lester Pond, third ward and Pearson have decided to seek reelection.

The only new candidate to step into the ring to date has been Tom Renner, a 24-year-old Republican who is seeking White's job.

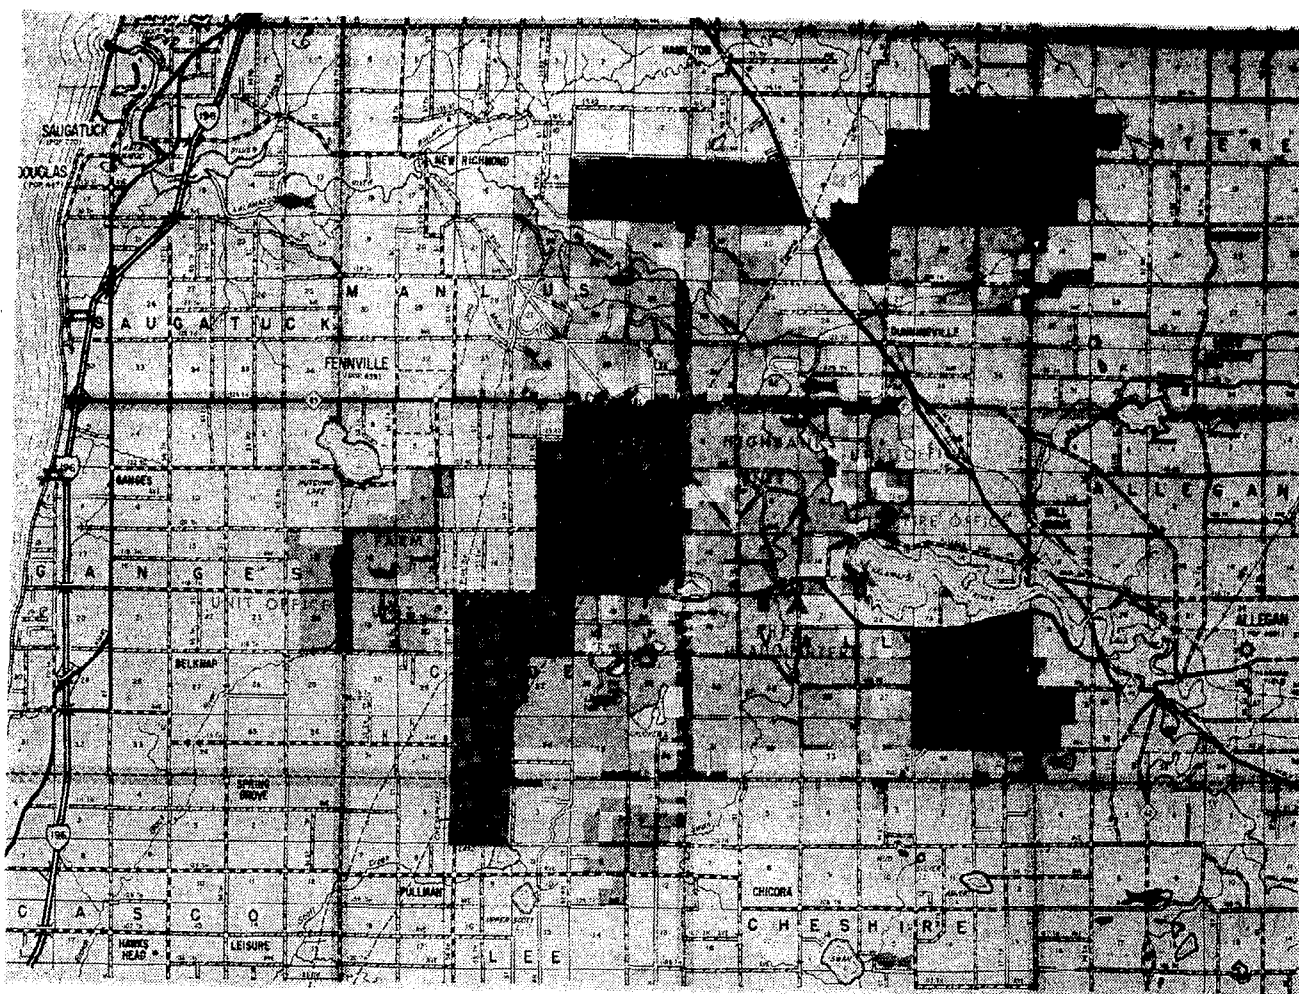

Pearson has been active in leading civic affairs in the Negro community for many years and has been a strong voice on behalf of the Negroes since his appointment to the council. He served for a short time on the city redevelopment commission, and has been active in cub and President of the Central school Parent teachers Assoc. He ran scout work, and in 1965 was defeated.

State police said the youth went to a party in Covert shortly before 11 p.m. when the incident occurred outside and Cunningham was cut. The assailant escaped on foot, troopers added.

GRANTS FOR KALAMAZOO

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George Romney has announced approval of Federal Economic Opportunity grants totaling $139,509 for the Kalamazoo County Community Action Program, Inc.

Sportsmen Win Partial Use
Of Allegan State Game Area

ALLEGAN — Four sections of the Allegan State Game Area have been temporarily opened by the Michigan State Conservation department for use by sports enthusiasts.

A field order from Lansing stipulates that the designated areas of state-owned land totaling 13,400 acres shall be opened temporarily to unrestricted use for snowmobiles, horseback riders and sled dog coursing on or off roads and trails within these sections.

The order was approved by the game and law division and director's office, and signed by the chief of game division, Don Douglas, and directors of the conservation department.

The action was taken after a series of meetings with conservation officials both locally and in Lansing, in which citizens of Southwestern Michigan protested the enforcement of laws and restricting recreation in the game area between Fennville and Allegan.

These meetings were climaxed on Nov. 7 when four state officials met with the newly-formed citizens group, VOR (Volunteers for Outdoor Recreation), which is comprised of representatives of all interested sporting groups.

At that time, L.A. "Curly" Davenport, who is in charge of habitat management, said, "It is not our intention to take the forest out of multiple use and there is room for all interests to work together." He said plans had been considered to treat the Allegan section independently of the other 59 game areas because it is the exception to the rule and had not been purchased by sportsmen's money.

Most of the land in the Allegan State Game Area was obtained from the federal government with only 6,507 acres or 15 per cent bought with Pitman-Robinson funds and state license revenues.

NO MOTORCYCLES

Davenport added he could not offer much hope for use of the area by motorcycle and four-wheel drive clubs. He said past experience has proven these vehicles cause erosion and other damage and it would take "some selling" to convince the department otherwise. This is confirmed in the field order which says motorcycles and jeeps are considered dry land vehicles and will be barred and permitted only on county roads.

It was suggested that during the temporary use period, members of VOR and other organizations inspect the forest and outline trails to be submitted for the approval of the conservation department for permanent facilities.

WORK FINISHED

This work has now been done and State Senator Gary Byker and VOR chairman Robert Drew have arranged for a meeting in Lansing on Nov. 27. To be presented are VOR's suggestions to extend courses beyond the temporary areas to keep up with the rising demand for recreational areas. VOR members believe this would be possible without infringing on waterfowl and turkey habitats. Chairman Drew added he believes an oversight has been made in not providing an area for dog field trial enthusiasts.

Bill Bartel, game biologist of the regional office in Plainwell, pointed out the field order says volunteers have offered to assist the department in posting and marking trails. He said this assistance will be necessary in the tremendous job before them. He added citizens would have to make their own arrangements with private land owners because approximately one third of the designated areas marked are not state-owned land.

SCHOOL FOR SHERIFFS

EAST LANSING (AP) — Some 40 newly elected sheriffs and deputies are expected to attend the 15th in a series of "schools" held for them at Michigan State Police Headquarters in East Lansing. The session, planned for Dec. 2-6, is sponsored by the Michigan Sheriffs Association and the State Police.

INSPECT TRAILS: Republican State Sen. Gary Byker of Hudsonville (pointing) and Robert Drew, Clyde township supervisor who also heads group called Volunteers for Outdoor Recreation (VOR), inspect trails opened in Allegan state game area. State Department of Natural Resources recently opened four sections of forest for use by sports enthusiasts. Byker said he feels most other trails also could be opened. Further discussion on this is planned next Wednesday in Lansing during meeting between Byker and VOR leaders. (Prosch-Jesen photo)

Would Hike
State Share
$1 BillionRaise Funds By Income, Industrial
Tax Increases

DETROIT (AP) — A revision in public school financing which would increase the state's share by $1 billion annually in five years is being proposed by the executive board of the Detroit Council of Parent-Teacher Associations.

The board estimates the state's current share in public education costs at $600 million annually.

TWO CLEAR WAYS

It says there are "two clear ways" to obtain the extra billion: increase the state income tax or levy a statewide property tax on industrial and major commercial property, or a combination of the two.

The council contends its plan would eliminate almost all locally voted school millage, assure each district of adequate funds regardless of its tax base, and allocate funds to districts on the basis of educational needs of the pupils.

The eight-point program would allocate $250 to $400 per pupil to each school district, the amount varying inversely with per capita income of residents.

Districts with per capita incomes of less than $2,100 annually would get $400 per pupil, districts with $3,001 or more in per capita income would get $250 per pupil.

The plan would make another $500 per pupil available from state and local district funds, the local share varying with the district's assessed valuation per pupil.

A district with a valuation of less than $10,000 per pupil would get 90 per cent of the $500, or $450 from the state, and contribute 10 per cent, or $50 from local funds. Districts with valuations $21,000 or more per pupil would get $300 in state aid and put up $200 locally.

Districts which wished to enrich their programs even more could do so from millages.

The state would take over 100 per cent of the cost of special education, remedial reading, vocational education and transportation, plus the cost of capital expenditures for buildings and equipment.

STATE STANDARDS

The state, however, would be allowed to set standards for size and cost per square foot of buildings and would be required to go no higher than 100 per cent of its figures.

The program would be phased in, with no district getting more than 10 per cent beyond its per-pupil expenditures of the previous year.

The committee said its proposal was based on current wage, salary and price levels, and aid should be adjusted upward "as the income of Michigan residents and state government increase."

Cass County

FINDS OLD NEWSPAPER: Harry Rouse, route 2, South Haven, shows single sheet copy of 1913 Chicago Daily News found by companion while driving a Michigan Highway Department truck in the Bangor area recently. The July paper's lead story was about a baseball game and a majority of the front page and at least half of the back page was devoted to baseball, track, sailboat races and summer athletics. A few stories appeared about spectacular disasters; a tornado in Minnesota; a train wreck near St. Louis, where passengers nearly suffocated while trapped in a tunnel. The paper sold for a penny and there was no advertising. (Staff photo)

Don't Hold Your Cash Waiting For Depression

By SAM SHULSKY

Q. You keep talking about buying stocks as a hedge against inflation. How about keeping cash as a hedge against deflation? Don't you think the end of the war will give the stock market a rough time? I went through the depression and came out broke. Many stocks and real estate investments became worthless, but people who had ready cash did real well buying up depressed securities and real estate.

A. It would be foolhardy for me to declare (in the words of that once-popular song) that "it ain't gonna rain no more, no more"; that we shall never again experience deflation. It could happen, although just how it could happen I cannot now imagine.

It seems to me that for the past 35 years this country's fiscal thinking has been committed to the policies that people are more important than dollars (the Full Employment Act of 1946 was one such pronouncement) and that deficit spending, both at home and abroad, is good for whatever ails us.

If you can show me how these philosophies are to be reversed, I would preach preparation for deflation. (And please don't think the solution is political.)

Let's all hope that the war in Vietnam has ended by the time this appears in print—or, if not, that it stops tomorrow. Ralph A. Rohn of Harris Upham & Co., my favorite stock market historian, points out that at the close of World War I, World War II and the Korean War, stock market prices dropped a few percentage points in selling which lasted anywhere from a few days to three months. But in every case, the selling was followed by a vigorous advance in stocks that more than wiped out the immediate postwar decline.

I suppose this course may be repeated if shooting were halted in Vietnam. But I fail to see how that would dislocate the entire U.S. economy. In the first place, space and defense programs will have to continue (a trace at the Paris meetings would NOT signify the end of the cold war) and secondly, so many civilian spending projects have accumulated at home that we could go on blithely running up budget deficits for as far ahead as anyone can see. And deficits translate into inflation.

In the last 35 years, we have had about a dozen years of intensive wars. But in only a few of the years since 1933 was there any halt in the rise in the cost of living. The Bureau of Labor Statistics costs of living index has gone from 45 in 1933 to above 122 currently. What you bought for $4.50 in 1933 costs you more than $12.20 today—and that's only an average figure.

Many necessities have gone up five-fold and more. In the same period the Dow Jones industrial stock average has risen from 99.9 to around 950. Of course, there have been setbacks—sharp ones. But the long term advance can not be denied.

Could we have another "big depression"? Possibly, but not probably. Government inflationary devices are too numerous, and, what's more, today's politicians have no qualms about using them.

I agree that everyone should have a cash reserve. That's not debatable. But if you're holding dollars in the hope of once more picking up good homes for a couple of thousand dollars, or General Motors common at 7%, you may have a long wait.

service is the annual check for $10 from Sanitary Cleaners, State and Elm streets. Every year Gene and John Fetters get this job out of the way. John is the new president of the Michigan Association of Drycleaners and Laundermen. He's got a date in the Bahamas to preside over the annual conference.

Kathy Kemp's Continental Beauty Salon fixed us up with $5 and they too are regular Good Fellow contributors.

The talk was football late last year at a gathering of patio quarterbacks and the big games being forecast was the battle between the world champion Green Bay Packers and the challenging Los Angeles Rams. Also debated was the clash between Indiana and the University of Southern California in the Rose Bowl. The Packers and Trojans won the games but the Good Fellow fund was the big winner because all the bets ended up in the kitty.

The losers paid off like good sports but they salvaged their feelings by hurling invectives at the winners.

As the season wore on other bets ended up in the Good Fellow fund when the Packers beat the Dallas Cowboys.

WOLVERINE WAGERS

The Michigan Wolverines won some cash for the Good Fellows when they beat Minnesota and Michigan State.

Such football experts as Bill Fisher, Ned Starkes, George Bernard, Dr. C. K. Johnson, Walt Laetz, the cooks at Tosi's, Mrs. John Kovian, Atty. Joe Killian, Dr. H. I. Kelsall, and Jim Thompson, the Bridgman barber, were involved one way or another.

The Twin Cities Area Newcomers club sent in $10 "in appreciation to our generous sponsors."

The Beseda club of Stevensville sent in $5 and from Union Pier came Frank Bard to put in $10 for himself and another $10 for David Bard. What inspires so many folks from so many places in Berrien County to pause during this the busiest season of them all and take time to send a contribution to the Good Fellows?

The Good Fellow fund has never failed to reach its goal.

INSURES SANTA'S VISIT

The well-established fact that no one wants Christmas to be a heartbreak instead of a holiday. In song, in decorations, in school plays, in the everyday greetings, Christmas is a joyous occasion. For the very young it means a visit by Santa. For the very old it means just being remembered.

Good Fellows want to be sure Santa makes it, that somebody does remember. So they dig down deep and come up with dimes and dollars, with cash and checks.

Many of the gifts come with heart-warming little notes. These go into the Good Fellow file along with the warm, appreciative letters of thanks.

In another file goes the tips of those in need. They come from everywhere, from the country and the city, from neighbors, teachers, policemen. Each is remembered.

AID FOR 316

Last year 316 checks went out to cover 737 people.

So the record fund went to help a record sized group who might well wished that Christmas would never come if it were not for the Good Fellows. Down through the alphabet went the Good Fellow checks in time to permit mother to get the gifts for the youngsters, for the invalid to order a present, for the lonely couple to make their modest purchases.

The checks were delivered in Baroda, Berrien Springs, Bridgman, Buchanan, Galien, Genoa, Harbert, Lakeside, New Buffalo, New Troy, Sawyer, Stevensville, Three Oaks, Union Pier and St. Joseph.
